Report of JAMES TUPPER, Master in Equity.

To the honorable the Chancellors :

On the 7th March, 1860, I submitted a report upon the evidence which had been taken in this case up to that time.

On the 16th November, 1860, an order was made by Chancellor Carroll, recommitting the said report, with instructions to the Master "to take the accounts of the executors and report thereon; and also as to the claim of the widow to dower, and of the other parties in interest before the Court." And on the 8th February, 1861, it being then suggested that such an account could not be properly taken without making the creditors parties according to the course of this Court, it was ordered, by Chancellor Dunkin, that the Master "give notice in the public gazettes of Charleston to the creditors of the said Thomas Bennett Lucas to prove their demands before him on or before the 1st day of April, 1861; and that, in case of their failure to come in and prove their said demands, they be excluded from the benefit of the decree in this case."

The accounts of the executors have been submitted and examined. No objection has been made to them. They are herewith filed as Exhibit A. The cash balance in the executors' hands on the 19th May, 1861, when the accounts were closed, was $90,510 31. In addition to this sum, there is to the credit of the executors, in the Savings Institution of this city, the following amounts :

Deposited by them on the 12th Dec., 1859.....	$ 4,500
And on the 29th March, 1860.....	20,500
In all.....	$25,000

These deposits, it is understood, were made to meet the claim of the widow to dower. The scheme of this report, however, requires that the above deposits be not separated from the general assets of the estate. I have, therefore, added them to the balance of $90,510 31, admitted by the executors' accounts to be in their hands, which makes the cash $115,510 31. The executors also hold bonds due to the estate of their testator for $18,140, and simple contract demands against sundry debtors of the estate for $11,681 06. These assets are represented to be good, and with one exception, viz: a claim on open account against James B. Campbell, Esquire, for $2,494 42, are supposed to be available for the payment of the debts of the estate. To the claim against Mr. Campbell a discount has been set off and established by proof for an amount which exceeds by $161 31 the claim of the estate against him. Mr. Campbell claims other demands against the estate of Lucas, but of these no proof has been furnished. From the schedule of the assets of the estate, I have deducted the claim against Mr. Campbell, and placed the balance in his favor among the debts on simple contract due by the estate. The true sum of the cash and uncollected assets thus ascertained is found to be $142,836 95, as appears by Exhibit B.

Pursuant to the order of the 8th February, 1861, notice was given, for four weeks, in the daily morning papers of the city, to the creditors of the late Thomas Bennett Lucas, to come in and prove their demands before the 1st day of April, 1861, or failing to do so that they would be excluded from the benefit of the decree to be made in this cause. Under this order a large number of claims has been presented. Many of these claims were not disputed, and having been proved in the usual way are allowed. Upon others, questions are raised which require the adjudication of the Court before a final settlement of the estate can be effected.

1. The first claim of this kind is upon a joint and several bond of J. B. Campbell and Thomas Bennett Lucas, dated the 20th January, 1858, and conditioned for the payment to William Whaley, administrator of Dr. G. W. Morris, of $3,500, in five equal successive annual instalments, with interest from date, payable annually. The interest has been paid to the 1st March, 1859. The evidence taken upon this claim is, that the "bond was given for the purchase money of ten slaves, bought by Mr. Campbell from the estate of George W. Morris. That the bond was secured by a mortgage of the slaves, and by the personal security of T. B. Lucas, as a joint obligor of the bond. Mr. Campbell is in possession of the negroes." The obligee insists upon his legal right to come in as a bond creditor of Thomas Bennett Lucas, and receive payment out of his estate. The well-established doctrine of this Court is, that the surety is entitled to the benefit of all the securities which the creditor obtains from the debtor for the payment of the debt, and that the creditor must exhaust these before he can come on the surety for payment. It does not appear from anything before me that the mortgaged property is insufficient to pay the debt in full. The sum of the bond for principal and interest is $4,030 12, and a mortgage of ten slaves would seem to be ample security for a debt of that amount. But this may not be the case at this particular time. The obligee of the bond is clearly entitled to rank as a specialty creditor of the estate of T. B. Lucas, to the extent of any deficiency in the mortgage security to meet his demand in full, and I so find.

2. The second claim is made on behalf of the holders of sundry Bills of Exchange, drawn by Thomas Bennett Lucas, on Thomas Scott and Wilbur & Price, of New York, and accepted by them. The bills are under protest in the hands of certain banks and citizens of this State, who claim, as holders of said protested bills, to rank as specialty creditors in the distribution of Mr. Lucas' estate. This claim is founded upon the A. A., 1786, 4 Stat. at Large, page 741, sec. 2, which provides, among other things, that "all creditors on protested bills of exchange, when the drawers or endorsers shall be dead, shall be upon an equality with bond creditors, any law, usage or custom, to the contrary notwithstanding." Against this it is urged that the foregoing provision of the Act of 1786 is repealed, by implication, by the "Executors' Act" of 1789, 5 Stat. at Large, p. 111. The latter Act prescribes the order in which debts of testators and intestates are to be paid. Among the debts enumerated by this act are "bonds and other obligations," and "debts due on open accounts." Unless bills of exchange can be classed under one of these two heads, there is clearly no description of debts in this Act which includes them. And it does not seem to me that they can properly fall within the denomination of either bonds, obligations or open accounts. These terms have a definite legal signification, and describe a class of debts entirely distinct from bills and promissory notes. If bills of exchange are not included among the debts enumerated in the Act of 1789, then there is no such contrariety or repugnance between that Act and the Act of 1786, as, in my view, indicates an intention on the part of the Legislature to repeal the Act of 1786. And so it was held in the case of McChure vs. Exors. of Polony, a ms. decision referred to in 1 Rice's Digest, 318. It does not appear from the brief statement furnished me of this case, whether the foreign bills, there held to rank as specialty debts under the Act of 1786, were protested before or after the death of the drawer. This, it has been argued, is a material circumstance. Although not so regarding it, the exceptants to the view I have taken are entitled to have the fact certified to the Court, that all the bills established in the present case matured, and were protested for non-payment after the death of Mr. Lucas, the drawer.

The foreign bills presented and proved under the call for creditors, in this case, are set down in Schedule C. The aggregate sum due upon these bills is $126,255 04. This includes interest on the said bills to the 1st April, 1861—to which day all the statements of this report are made up—and, also, ten per cent. for “damages” allowed by the Act of 1786 on “the sum drawn for.” Certain collaterals were lodged by Mr. Lucas, during his life, with the Bank of Charleston, to secure the payment of the bills drawn on Thomas Scott. One of these collaterals was a policy of life insurance for $40,000, from which $39,000 had been realized and applied rateably to the bills before they were rendered to this office. The amount above given ($126,255 04) is the balance due after crediting the said payments. The remaining collaterals, still held by the Bank of Charleston, consist of 36½ shares in the capital stock of the “Cannonsboro’ Mill Company,” standing in the name of T. Bennett Lucas, the par value of which is $1,000 per share.....	$36,500

Bond of Henry E. Lucas to T. Bennett Lucas (secured by a second mortgage of “Crow Island Plantation,” also by a first mortgage of “Kinloch Swamp,” and by a first mortgage of twenty-six negroes), for .....	31,500
Two Bonds of Courtney and Simonton (secured by mortgage of lots in —— street), for .....	3,400

In adjusting the estate of Lucas, these collaterals must be regarded as assets. If not applied by the holders to the particular debts for which they are held as security, and these debts are paid out of the general assets, then the collaterals revert to the estate. In any event it is important, for the purposes of this report, that the value of these securities should be ascertained and set off against the liabilities of the estate; and it cannot affect the final result of the account if they are set off against the particular liabilities for the payment of which they are now hypothecated. Testimony has been taken as to the value of the securities. As to the stock in the Cannonsboro' Mill Company, it has been intimated that there is some claim now being prosecuted by the said Company in another cause in this Court, for which claim the shares of Mr. Lucas in said Company are said to be liable. Of the nature of this claim I have no official information. The evidence before me, however, shows that an offer was made by the President of the Cannonsboro' Mill Company to purchase from the executors of Mr. Lucas the shares standing in their testator's name, subject to all claims, for ten thousand dollars, and that this offer was declined, being considered far below the value of the said shares. I have, therefore, assumed ten thousand dollars as the minimum value of this stock. As to the other securities held by the Bank of Charleston, the testimony is that the land mortgaged to secure the bond of Henry E. Lucas, who is insolvent, viz: "Crow Island Plantation" and "Kinloch Swamp," adjoining said plantation, would "be a cheap property" at the present time at $15,000. This sum would be sufficient to pay off the prior incumbrance of $6,700 upon the said land, and leave $8,300 to be applied to the bond of Henry E. Lucas, in the possession of the Bank. The market value of the negroes mortgaged to secure the same bond has been set down at $16,200. The bonds of Courtney and Simonton for $3,400, are represented as good. The aggregate value of the above collateral securities are thus ascertained to be $37,900. This sum deducted from the balance due upon the foreign bills of exchange ($126,255 04) will leave $88,355 04 to be paid out of the general estate of Mr. Lucas in the hands of his executors. Considering these bills as specialties they are the only debts of this rank to be provided for in the future administration of the estate. In this I assume that the bond held by the administrator of the estate of Morris will be paid out of the negroes mortgaged to secure it.

3. The third claim is submitted on behalf of the widow for her dower.

Thomas Bennett Lucas died seized of the following real estate, which has been sold by his executors:

West Point Mills, sold for.....	$97,000
Dwelling-house, " .....	25,000
Lot on Commercial wharf, sold for.....	1,825
Lot corner of Palmetto st., " .....	1,130

In all.....$124,955

The West Point Mills, together with thirty-six negroes and a schooner called the Hettiwan, was subject, at the time of the death of Mr. Lucas, to a mortgage securing three bonds, given for the purchase money, amounting to $65,507 66. The land embraced in the said mortgage was sold by the executors, as above stated, for $97,000. The thirty-six negroes and schooner were sold by them (as appears by Schedule D) for $31,322. A rateable apportionment of the mortgage debt between the real and personal property embraced in the mortgage, according to their respective values, will give a charge upon the land of $49,518 70, and upon the negroes and schooner of $15,988 96. The dwelling-house lot was subject to the lien of a mortgage securing a bond for $11,112 50 given for the purchase money. Upon the lot on Commercial wharf and the lot on Palmetto street there were no special incumbrances. The bonds secured by the foregoing mortgages have all been paid by the executors, from the proceeds of the sales of the realty and personalty. The estate, while not sufficient to pay all the debts of the testator, is sufficient to pay all the specialty debts, including the for-ign bills of exchange claimed to rank as such. The widow claims compensation for her dower out of the assets still remaining in the hands of the executors.

The case of Wilson vs. McConnell, 9 Rich. Eq. R., 504, furnishes the rule for the assessment of the dower in this case. In the former case it was held that a husband dying insolvent, his widow is entitled to have the proceeds of the sales of his personal estate applied to the payment rateably of bond debts secured by mortgages of land with other specialty demands, and that the proceeds of the real estate subject to dower should be resorted to only for the deficiency in the personal assets, so applied, to satisfy the mortgage liens upon the land.

In applying these principles to the present case, it is necessary first to ascertain the value of the personal estate of the testator. This cannot now be directly arrived at. The executors have received considerable sums of money from the proceeds of the mill during the time it was worked by them; also from the hire of negroes and from the collection of debts due to the estate. These receipts are included in the general accounts of the executors, which embrace all their transactions with the estate, and cannot be readily distinguished and separated. The value of the personal estate may, however, be ascertained indirectly, but with almost certainty, by deducting from the gross sum of the cash receipts of the executors and the uncollected assets still in their hands, the disbursements on account of the mill, the expenses of administration and the sales of the real estate. The surplus will be the amount of the personal estate subject to the payment of debts.

The cash received by the executors from all sources, as appears by their accounts, was...	$310,028 69

Add the amount of the uncollected assets in their hands .....	27,326 64

And the gross value of the entire estate is obtained, viz .....	$337,355 33

-------------------	--------------

Then deduct the disbursements on account of the mill and the expenses of administration .....$55,188 27
 Also, the proceeds of the sales of the real estate.....$124,955 00—180,143 27

And the difference.....$157,212 06 is the amount of the personal estate. This, as the primary fund for the payment of debts, would be first applicable, according to the case of Wilson vs. McConnell, to the payment rateably of all the specialty demands, including debts secured by mortgage of the land. But in the case before me, there are bond debts, secured by mortgage of the personalty. In this respect, the present case differs from Wilson vs. McConnell. Here the widow's equity to compel the creditors secured by mortgage of the land, upon which she has a lien, to resort to the personalty for payment, is met by a corresponding equity on the part of creditors who have a specific lien on the personalty. It seems to me that creditors of this class are entitled to priority of payment out of the proceeds of the sale of the personalty mortgaged for their security. I have therefore deducted from the amount of the personal estate as above ascertained, viz:.....$157,212 06

The following debts, secured by mortgages of personal property sold by the executors:

3 bonds to Rosa Lucas, Julius Lucas and Lucy Lucas, secured by mortgage of the West Point Mill, thirty-six negroes and a schooner. Rateable apportionment of debt to negroes and schooner .....$15,988 96
 Bond to Augustus Lucas, secured by mortgage of negroes..... 18,601 24
 Bond to I. Ball, guardian, secured by mortgage of negroes..... 17,552 39
 Bond to R. DeTreville, secured by mortgage of negroes..... 23,929 44

In all .....76,072 03

Leaving.....$81,140 03

to be applied to the payment rateably of the mortgages on the land and the unsecured specialty debts, viz:

Proportion of bonds to Rosa, Julius and Lucy
Lucas, secured by mortgage of West Point
Mill lands.....	$49,518 70
Bond to M. M. Lucas, secured by mortgage of dwelling-house lands.....	11,112 50
	$60,631 20
Bond to P. J. Barbot, unsecured.....	2,626 88
	$63,258 08
Foreign bills of exchange ranked as specialties.	88,355 04
	$151,613 12

The amount of the personalty (\$81,140 03) applicable to the payment of the debts last enumerated (\$151,613 12) is a fraction under  $53\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. of the said debts. The amount to be applied to the bonds secured by mortgages on the land (\$60,631 20) is \$32,437 69. This will leave a deficiency of personalty to pay said mortgage debts of \$28,193 51, and this deficiency is a charge upon the mortgaged lands. These lands were sold by the executors for \$122,000. The surplus remaining after providing for the above deficiency is \$93,806 49; and this sum added to the sales of the lands not mortgaged, viz: lot on Commercial wharf, \$1,825, and lot on Palmetto street, \$1,130—\$2,955, will give the value of the real estate \$96,761 49—to one-sixth of which, \$16,126 91 $\frac{1}{2}$ , the widow is entitled for her dower, and I so find. An account of the particulars of the foregoing statement marked E, is filed with this report.

It is proper here to state that the solicitors of the widow, under her written instructions, waive her claim for dower out of such portions of the real estate of her husband as her children may be held entitled to under the will of their grandfather, Jonathan Lucas.

4. Claim of Children. It is submitted that under the will of Jonathan Lucas, his grandchildren, the children of

T. Bennett Lucas, are entitled to the share which their father took under the said will. And that the said share having been received by T. Bennett Lucas, in land and negroes, which were sold after his death, the proceeds of said sale are subject pro tanto to a lien for the claim of the said children, under the limitations of the will of their grandfather, Jonathan Lucas.

Jonathan Lucas died in May, 1848, leaving a will dated the 25th August, 1847, whereby he devised all his estate to his executors and their survivors, in trust, to manage and conduct his mill and planting establishments until all his children should marry or attain twenty-one years of age, or until his last surviving minor child should depart this life; and directing that, in the mean time, his executors should apply the net income of the estate to the payment of his debts and to the support and education of his children who may be unmarried and under twenty-one years of age; and, also, to the support and education of the child or children of any of his children already dead, or who might thereafter die before the time appointed for the division of his estate. The testator then provides for the division of the estate, as follows:

“2. When all my children shall have married, or attained twenty-one years of age, or when my last surviving minor child shall depart this life under twenty-one, in case that should happen to occur, then my executors shall divide and apportion all my estate, as it shall then stand, in equal parts among all my children who shall be living when the last of my minor children surviving each other shall marry or attain twenty-one years of age, or shall happen to die before attaining such age. But grandchildren shall be substituted in the place of any parent who is now dead or who may hereafter die, and shall take respectively the share which the parent, if living, would have taken. And my executors shall take care that the share of each daughter, or of a substituted granddaughter, shall be settled to her sole use, free from the debt or engagements of any husband she may marry.

“3. I expressly subject each and every share given as aforesaid to the following limitations, that is to say, in case any of my children shall die without leaving issue living at the time of its decease, or in case such issue of any child shall die unmarried and under twenty-one years of age, the share of such child shall revert to my estate, and be equally divided among my other children, living at the happening of such contingency; or in case of the death of any child having issue alive at the happening of such contingency, such issue to represent the deceased parent, and to be entitled to take a share in common with the other children. And the same rules shall apply to every accruing or survived share as to the original one. And all these limitations and conditions shall apply as well to the share of my daughter who has already died and has left issue, as also to any others of my children who may die, either before or after me.”

The testator then appoints his executors guardians of his minor children, with directions that their maintenance and education be borne by his general estate.

The fourth and fifth clauses of the will are as follows :

“4. I authorize my executors, from time to time, to make advancements to my children to an extent not exceeding the presumptive share of each, and to deliver the possession and control of the same to any child at any time they, the said executors, shall see fit. Such advancements, however, together with all which may have been made by myself, shall be charged against the shares of each child to whom the same may have been made, and shall constitute a part thereof in the final division.

The advancements which may be made to any daughter shall be settled in manner already declared; and I expressly exonerate my executors from liability for any waste or loss which may accrue to any advancement or share delivered in pursuance of this, my will. And I also declare, that they are to be indemnified by my estate for every liability, loss or expense incurred, and shall be held accountable for no errors of judgment in their conduct as executors and trustees.

“5. I authorize and empower my executors to sell and convey any portion of my estate which they may deem expedient, either for the purpose of paying debts or making a division, or in the conduct or management of the business. And if in their opinion circumstances should require a division of my estate, in whole or in part, before the period which I have named, I fully authorize my executors to make such division, and to deliver the property into the hands of the legatees and devisees—such property, however, to remain subject in their hands to the limitations already declared.”

A copy of the entire will is filed with this report.

The estate devised by the testator to each of his children is clearly a vested estate, subject to be divested by death before the youngest child marries or attains twenty-one years of age, with remainder over to the children of such deceased child limited, as in the prior devise, on their living at the time when the estate should become absolute and indefeasible, i. e., when the youngest surviving child of testator should marry or attain the age of twenty-one.

Thomas Bennett Lucas, one of the children of Jonathan Lucas, died in 1859, leaving four children, all of whom are minors. Two of the surviving children of Jonathan Lucas, Augustus and Lucy, are yet under twenty-one years of age, and unmarried. Under these circumstances, it is conceded, I believe, that the children of Thomas Bennett Lucas would be entitled to the estate devised to them, unless the event upon which the estate was to become absolute and indefeasible happened in the lifetime of their father, the prior devisee. And this event it is contended is not the marriage or majority of the youngest child of the testator, as I have assumed, but the period of the division of the estate, which division the evidence shows was made during the life of Thomas Bennett Lucas.

The intention of the testator that no final and absolute division of his estate should take place before his youngest child married or arrived at full age, seems to me to be clear. This intention is apparent from the directions given in the will for the management of the estate by the executors, and for the appropriation by them of the income until that period; also, by the provision made for the maintenance and education of the testator's minor children and grandchildren out of his general estate; also, by the exoneration of the executors from liability for any waste or loss which might accrue to any share advanced by them before the period of division fixed by the will, and lastly, by the explicit limitations of the will itself. It is true that authority is given to the executors to make a division of the estate before the youngest child marries or attains full age. But this authority is coupled with an express declaration that the property in that event shall remain in the hands of the legatees and devisees subject to the limitations of the will. And so it seems to have been held upon a bill filed by the executors in 1855, asking, among other things, for the instruction of the Court upon the construction of this will, as to their duty to reserve a fund for the support and education of the minor children and grandchildren of the testator. A division of the estate was then made, or was about to be made, under the authority given to the executors by the will. The Chancellor who heard the case held "that provision must be made for the support and education of the minor children of the testator at the general expense of the whole in any scheme of division which may be adopted." This decision was appealed from on the ground that the division of the whole estate during the minority of the children or grandchildren was left by the testator to the discretion of his executors, whose decision to divide the estate concluded the question, and necessarily cast the support and education of the minors upon their respective portions only. The objection now urged to the claim of the children is substantially the same. It is now, as then, insisted that the whole scheme of the will is based upon the discretion of the executors to fix the period of division, and that the rights of all parties under the will are to be fixed and determined by that discretion. The Court of Appeals affirmed the decree of the Chancellor upon the case then made; and although the question now under consideration was not then immediately before the Court, its determination is necessarily involved, as it seems to me, in the decision then made, that the rights of the children and grandchildren to maintenance and education out of the general estate, were not to be affected by the exercise of the discretion of the executors in fixing a period for distribution anterior to that fixed by the will. If the exercise of that discretion could not deprive the grandchildren of their interest in the income of the estate, much less can that discretion destroy their interest in the estate itself. And the authorities seem to be clear, that if a trust in favor of certain objects be once expressly created, a discretionary power in the trustees, however ample, will not do away with the effect of the trust previously declared.

The rights of the children under the will of their grandfather being ascertained, the next inquiry is, whether the share of the estate which went into the possession of their father upon the division made in 1853, can now be traced and distinguished, so as to enure to the benefit of the said children to the exclusion of the creditors of Thomas Bennett Lucas. In my report of the 7th March, 1860, the evidence then taken upon this point was submitted. For convenience of reference this evidence, together with such facts as have subsequently been brought to my attention, are embraced in the following statement:

The executors of the will of Jonathan Lucas, upon the request of the adult children, and with the concurrence of their own judgment, proceeded, in 1853, to sell the estate of their testator for the purpose of making a division. On the 12th July, 1853, Thomas Bennett Lucas, the eldest son of the testator, purchased the West Point Mills establishment, with thirty-six negroes and a schooner, for $108,000, payable in cash and bonds. In payment of the cash, the executors received from him $25,000, which was raised by his giving to the executors the following receipt :

“Charleston, July 12th, 1853. Received from William Lucas, C. G. Memminger, and W. J. Bennett, Executors of Jonathan Lucas, twenty-five thousand dollars, on account of my share of the Estate of said Jonathan Lucas, to be adjusted upon the final division thereof.

“T. B. LUCAS.

“In the presence of JAMES B. CAMPBELL.”

The executors thereupon made the following entries in their accounts. On the debit side they charge, “Thomas B. Lucas, paid him on account of his share of estate, $25,000.” And on the credit side, they credit the estate as “received from T. B. Lucas, on account sales of West Point Mills, $25,000.”

For the balance of the purchase, T. B. Lucas executed to the executors three bonds, in the sum of $21,000 each, and one for $20,000, secured by mortgage of the property sold.

The property was all delivered up to T. B. Lucas as purchaser; and the bonds remained in hands of the executors with the proceeds of sales of the other property of the testator.

In June, 1853, under proceedings in the Court of Chancery, a partition of the whole estate was made, and by the Master's (Mr. Gray) report, the whole estate was adjusted. By that report, it was ascertained that Thomas Bennett Lucas was entitled to a further sum of $2,400 44, which, under the decree of the Court, was paid over to him by the executors on the 1st June, 1855, in full of his share; and the following receipt was taken from him :

“Charleston, July 9th, 1855. Received from C. G. Memminger, Executor of the Estate Jonathan Lucas, two thousand four hundred dollars 44 cents, being the balance of my share of the estate, as per decree of the Court of Equity.

“T. B. LUCAS.

This payment by the executor was made by setting off the amount against the interest due on certain bonds of T. Bennett Lucas, given for the purchase of property from the estate of Jonathan Lucas, viz :

- $1,009 94. Interest written off from bond for $10,500, given for purchase of dwelling-house.
- $1,093 93. Interest written off from bond for $17,605, given for negroes not embraced in the West Point Mill purchase.
- $ 269 57. Interest written off from one of the four bonds given for the purchase of the "West Point establishment."

In the June term, 1856, the Master (Mr. Gray) reported that the above sum of $2,400 44 had been paid over to T. Bennett Lucas by the executors, and that they had fully administered the estate and accounted for the same.

The bonds given by T. Bennett Lucas for the several purchases made by him were assigned under the decree of the Court to pay the shares of the other devisees and legatees. That portion of the decree which relates to the present subject matter is as follows :

"On hearing the report of the Master, it is ordered that the same be confirmed, and that the complainants (the executors) do give the credits and assign the bonds, stocks and securities, and pay the cash balances to the several legatees who have attained the age of twenty-one years, according to the allotment contained in Schedule No. 6, filed with said report, etc.

"It is further ordered, that each of the adult defendants and the guardians of each of the infants, do contribute the sum of three hundred and ten dollars annually to a common fund for the support of the infants, as recommended in the report, to be paid to the Master in half yearly payments, in advance, on the first of every July and January, until otherwise ordered by the Court, etc."

All the bonds given by T. Bennett Lucas for his purchases from the estate of Jonathan Lucas have been paid and the mortgages satisfied. Of the four bonds given for the "West Point establishment" one was paid in the lifetime of Mr. Lucas, and the remaining three by his executors since his death. Mr. Lucas died in possession of all the land and negroes referred to in the foregoing statement.

It will be convenient to consider, first, the claim of the children in respect to the $25,000, for which a receipt was given by Mr. Lucas to the executors on the 12th July, 1853. It is clear that no money passed between the parties. Mr. Lucas was the purchaser of the Mill establishment for $108,000. Against this purchase was discounted his "presumptive share" in the estate ($25,000), and the payment of the balance of the purchase money was secured by four bonds for $83,000, secured by a mortgage of the land, negroes and schooner conveyed to him by the executors. To the extent of $25,000, he received his share in property. The entries made by the executors in their accounts with the estate indicate upon their face that they received $25,000 from Mr. Lucas for the cash portion of said purchase, and that they immediately paid to Mr. Lucas a like sum on account of his share in the estate. But this is merely a mode of statement adopted by the executors in recording their transactions with the estate, and does not avoid the fact that T. Bennett Lucas received the $25,000 in property. Can the property be traced and distinguished so as to enure to the benefit of the children and postpone the claims of the general creditors of T. B. Lucas until the trusts of the will in favor of the children are discharged? I think it can. To the extent of the $25,000 Mr. Lucas received his share in specie. In land, negroes and a schooner which were in his possession when he died, and which were sold by his executors, and the proceeds accounted for by them.

If the executors of Jonathan Lucas, in the division of that estate, had delivered to T. B. Lucas, as his distributive share, certain lands and negroes, valued at $25,000, and received an acknowledgment from him in which the property was described, it can scarcely be doubted that he would have taken the property subject to the limitations of the will; and if after his death the same property had passed into the hands of his executors, it is equally clear that the estate of the children, in the said property under their grandfather's will, would have vested to the exclusion of all others. The only circumstance which creates doubt is the fact that the property which T. B. Lucas received, on account of his share in the estate, was mixed with other property of which he became possessed by purchase from the same estate. And here, I think, the weight of authority is in favor of the equitable lien of the children, as against the general creditors of their father, who are the only parties whose interests are prejudiced by said lien. Whether T. Bennett Lucas be regarded as a trustee, under the fifth clause of Jonathan Lucas' will, or as a bona fide purchaser with notice of the trust, the same rule applies that trust property may be followed whenever it is of a tangible nature, and it is immaterial that the trust property is blended with other property of the same nature, belonging beneficially to the trustee or purchaser with notice. Hill on Trustees, 531 and notes. Price vs. Blackmore, 6 Beav., *507. The title from the executors of Jonathan Lucas to T. Bennett Lucas conveys an absolute fee, and does not refer to the trusts of the will. It is possible that the creditors of T. B. Lucas may have been thereby misled (as it is argued) in their estimate of his property; but the fact that the conveyance is made by executors would seem to be sufficient to put creditors on the inquiry as to their title. Be this however as it may, the rule, as above stated, appears, so far as general creditors are concerned, to be inflexible. Under all the circumstances, I am of opinion that the claim of the children of T. Bennett Lucas, to the extent of $25,000, must be regarded as a specific lien upon the West Point land, negroes and schooner, and that they are entitled to priority of payment out of the proceeds of sale of that property.

In addition to the $25,000 received by Mr. Lucas from the estate of his father, the testimony shows that he subsequently received from the executors the sum of $2,400 44, in full of his share in the estate, making the value of the entire share $27,400 44. As to this last receipt of $2,400 44, I have not been able to attain the same conclusion as in the matter of the $25,000. That the $2,400 44 originally formed a part of the share in the estate of Jonathan Lucas, which, at the death of T. Bennett Lucas, vested in his children, I have no doubt. But it did not remain in specie, nor was it ever invested in other property. It was applied by the executors to the payment of interest due upon the bonds of T. B. Lucas, given for the credit portion of his purchases from the estate. And the entire amount, except $296 57, was written off from bonds given for property not embraced in the West Point Mill purchase. All the bonds, to the interest of which the said sum of $2,400 44 was applied, were assigned to the other devisees and legatees in settlement of their respective shares. The interest accruing on these bonds was a debt to them, not for the purchase money of the property of which their shares originally consisted, but as the consideration for the indulgence granted in the credit allowed to the purchaser. Mr. Lucas had the use of the purchase money, and, as an equivalent, the parties entitled to said money received as interest the balance coming to him from the estate on a final settlement. It is not perceived how such an appropriation of a portion of his share can be identified with the property purchased by him any more than if, before the final settlement, Mr. Lucas had enjoyed the possession, by hire, of property subsequently purchased by him, and a portion of his share in the estate had been paid to the other devisees and distributees as an equivalent for the use and occupation. It is a case of "waste or loss," in the hands of the prior devisee, referred to in the fourth section of the testator's will, for which the executors are exonerated from liability. But while I do not see that any part of the estate of T. Bennett Lucas is so specifically affected by this application of a portion of his share in the estate of Jonathan Lucas, as to be liable to the claim of the children now before the Court, it is clear to my mind that the $2,400 44 having been appropriated to a personal obligation of their father, his general estate should be held liable for it, and this being insolvent, the children are entitled to come in pari passu with the other creditors and prove against the estate the amount so due to them. And I so find.

As already stated, the widow postpones her claim for dower out of so much of the land as may be held subject to the claim of her children. This renders necessary an apportionment of their claim for $25,000, hereinbefore allowed as distinguishable from the property of the general estate of T. Bennett Lucas, between the realty and personalty in which the said sum was received. The West Point lands, as previously shown, were sold for $97,000. The thirty-six negroes and the schooner Hettiwan, for $31,322. A rateable apportionment of $25,000 between these sums, results in a charge upon the land of nineteen and a half per cent., or $18,915. One-sixth of this sum, or $3,152 50, must, therefore, be discounted against the amount hereinbefore assessed for the widow's dower.

5. The simple contract demands, presented and proved under the call for creditors in this case, are set forth in the schedule marked F. Including the claim of the children ranked in this class, these debts amount to $172,845 35. If the findings of this report, as to the claims entitled to priority of payment, are sustained by the Court, the surplus applicable to the simple contract debts will be $16,507 50, or a fraction over nine and a half per cent. of said debts. The following statement will exhibit this result:

TESTIMONY.

MASTER'S OFFICE, 26th November, 1860.

Theodore Stoney, sworn—says: Is one of executors of will of T. B. Lucas; the only outstanding bond of his testator unpaid is a bond of Wm. Whaley, administrator, for $3,500, on which his testator was surety for J. B. Campbell, Esq. There is due to sundry banks on notes, $105,050; Notes to individuals not in bank, $8,136 87; Bills of exchange, claimed as specialty debt, $141,885 67.

On this last sum $40,000 has been paid from the policy of insurance on testator's life; the balance of last item is subject to further reduction by whatever may be received on certain collaterals in hands of parties claiming under said bills of exchange. There are, also, claims on open accounts by sundry creditors, amounting to $48,719 94.

All the assets have been converted except a tract of land in St. Thomas' Parish of little value, and sundry outstanding accounts, amounting to about $9,000; these are supposed to be good. The cash balance in executors' hands, as per account rendered, is $90,510 31.

In addition to this sum, there is in the Savings Bank, deposited by executors to meet widow's claim of dower, $25,000; of which $4,500 was deposited on 12th December, 1859, and $20,500 was deposited on 29th March, 1860.

THEODORE STONEY,
Executor Estate of T. B. Lucas.

MASTER'S OFFICE, 27th November, 1860.

J. K. Sass, sworn—says: Is President of the Bank of Charleston; certain drafts were drawn by T. B. Lucas, in his lifetime, on Thomas Scott, of New York, through the Bank of Charleston, the Planters' and Mechanics' Bank, the People's Bank, Bank of South Carolina, Union Bank, and Farmers' and Exchange Bank. These drafts amount in the aggregate to $96,500; on this sum about $39,000 has been paid from the proceeds of certain policies of life insurance assigned by the said T. B. Lucas, the balance is secured by the following collaterals:

Bond of H. E. Lucas and interest, 15th October, 1858.....	$31,500
36½ shares Cannonsboro' Mill and Wharf Company.
1 bond of T. B. Lucas, S. G. Courtenay and C. H. Simonton.....	1,400
1 bond of T. B. Lucas, S. G. Courtenay and C. H. Simonton.....	2,000

These collaterals were assigned by Lucas to Scott, and by Scott turned over to witness to be collected and applied to the payment on the said drafts rateably among the said banks. The bond of H. E. Lucas, for $31,500, is secured by a second mortgage of a plantation on North Santee—cannot say to what extent this is available.

The shares in the Cannonsboro' Mill and Wharf Company, he thinks, are worth about $15,000. An offer was made by the President of the Company to pay $10,000, and take the shares in full settlement of all demands between the estate of T. B. Lucas and said Company. This offer was not accepted.

The two bonds of Lucas, Courtenay and Simonton, are secured by a mortgage, and are supposed to be good.

Witness represents claims against the estate of T. B. Lucas, on drafts unsecured by collaterals, amounting to $12,000. These are drafts on Wilbur & Price, of New York, and accepted by them.

The acceptors of these drafts have not paid them—they are under protest.

There are other drafts held by banks in the city which are not secured; does not know the amounts of these drafts, or by what banks they are held.

The Bank of Charleston holds claims on the estate of T. B. Lucas on promissory notes.

The bond of H. E. Lucas, for $31,500 is secured by a mortgage of Crow Island, and an adjoining tract of one hundred acres, and by twenty-seven negroes. Witness thinks there is a prior mortgage incumbrance on the land, but not on the negroes.

AFFIDAVITS ANNEXED TO CLAIM OF J. B. CAMPBELL, ESQ.

Personally appeared J. B. Campbell, Esq., and makes oath that the foregoing account is for services actually rendered, and that the charges for the same are fair and just—and that the other items are correct, subject to such discounts as may be established by the Estate of the late T. B. Lucas.

Additional affidavit of Mr. Campbell, who, being sworn—says, that

The foregoing is not, and does not, purport to be a full statement of his side of the account between himself and the late T. B. Lucas. The same was not filed by him as his claim in the Master's office, nor was it made up for that purpose. The circumstances under which said statement of account was made will be understood by the letter appended to it, and are as follows: The executors of Mr. Lucas made a claim upon Mr. Campbell and commenced suit thereon. Mr. Campbell thereupon made out the skeleton account above, selecting such items of services, etc., as were easily proved or known to Mr. Memminger, the attorney of the executors, and was submitted to him for the consideration of the executors whether it was worth while for them to press their suit, seeing that the balance would be against the estate if the items were charged at low rates. Messrs. Memminger, Jervy and Wilkinson, or the executors, placed the account and letter in the Master's office, and afterward Mr. Campbell, at the suggestion of the Master, added the amounts to each item which were previously left blank.

Mr. Campbell claims the right now to make proof of his claim, generally, not only for services but also for moneys due to him otherwise, and especially for the sum of about twelve hundred dollars, being Mr. Campbell's share of amount of negro hire and freight erroneously charged in account of Cannonsboro' Mill and paid by Mr. Campbell, but were admitted or allowed to be correct. The circumstances under which said payment and other payments were made, viz: the retention by Mr. Lucas of money in his hands, will appear in evidence.

[COPY OF WILL OF JONATHAN LUCAS.]

State of South Carolina :

I, Jonathan Lucas, of Charleston, do make and ordain this to be my last will and testament.

I give, devise, and bequeath, all my estate and property, of every kind, unto my executors, or such of them as shall qualify upon this my will, and to the survivors and survivor of them in trust, that they shall manage and conduct my mills and planting establishments by such fitting agents, and in such manner as they shall deem most for the advantage of my family, until all my children shall marry, or attain twenty-one years of age, or until my last surviving minor child shall depart this life; and in the meantime my said executors shall apply the net income to the payment of my debts, and to the support and education of my children who may be unmarried and under twenty-one years, and also to the support and education of the child or children of any of my children who have already died, or who may hereafter die before the time appointed for the division of my estate; the surplus income, if any, to be applied at the discretion of my executors to the advancement of my other children who are or may become adult, or to be invested and abide the final distribution of my estate.

2. When all my children shall have married, or attained twenty-one years of age, or when my last surviving minor child shall depart this life under twenty-one, in case that should happen to occur, then my executors shall divide and apportion all my estate, as it shall then stand, in equal parts among all my children who shall be living when the last of my minor children surviving each other shall marry or attain twenty-one years of age, or shall happen to die before attaining such age. But grandchildren shall be substituted in the place of any parent who is now dead or who may hereafter die, and shall take respectively the share which the parent, if living, would have taken. And my executors shall take care that the share of each daughter, or of a substituted granddaughter, shall be settled to her sole use, free from the debt or engagements of any husband she may marry.

3. I expressly subject each and every share given as aforesaid to the following limitations: that is to say, in case any of my children shall die without leaving issue, living at the time of its decease, or in case such issue of any child shall die unmarried, and under twenty-years of age, the share of such child shall revert to my estate, and be equally divided among my other children, living at the happening of such contingency; or in case of the death of any child having issue alive at the happening of such contingency, such issue to represent the deceased parent, and to be entitled to take a share in common with the other children. And the same rules shall apply to every accruing or survived share, as to the original one. And all these limitations and conditions shall apply as well to the share of my daughter who has already died and has left issue, as also to any others of my children who may die, either before or after me.

3. I appoint my executors to be guardians of my minor children, authorizing them to expend upon their education whatever sums they may see fit. And inasmuch as my elder children have had the benefit of their education from my estate, the charges for the maintenance and education of my said minor children shall be borne by my general estate, and shall not be charged to the separate account of the children.

4. I authorize my executors, from time to time, to make advancements to my children to an extent not exceeding the presumptive share of each, and to deliver the possession and control of the same to any child at any time they, the said executors, shall see fit. Such advancements, however, together with all which may have been made by myself, shall be charged against the shares of each child to whom the same may have been made, and shall constitute a part thereof in the final division.

The advancements which may be made to any daughter shall be settled in manner already declared ; and I expressly exonerate my executors from liability for any waste or loss which may accrue to any advancement or share delivered in pursuance of this, my will. And, I also declare, that they are to be indemnified by my estate for every liability, loss or expense incurred, and shall be held accountable for no errors of judgment in their conduct as executors and trustees.

5. I authorize and empower my executors to sell and convey any portion of my estate which they may deem expedient, either for the purpose of paying debts or making a division, or in the conduct or management of the business. And if in their opinion circumstances should require a division of my estate, in whole or in part, before the period which I have named, I fully authorize my executors to make such division, and to deliver the property into the hands of the legatees and devisees—such property, however, to remain subject in their hands to the limitations already declared.

6. It is my desire that my Middleburg plantation and negroes, with appurtenances, should, if possible, be kept in my family. I therefore authorize and empower my executors to sell and assign the same to some one of my children, such as the said executors shall deem best; and in order to enable such child to pay for the same, the executors shall fix upon the property what they consider a fair price, and may make the terms of the sale such as they may deem most advisable to effect the object in view. And they shall be authorized to assign to any other of the children in part or in entire satisfaction of their shares, as the same may reach, so much of bonds or securities, taken for the purchase, as they may deem expedient.

7. I appoint my friend William Lucas, C. G. Memminger and W. J. Bennett, to be executors of this, my will, and I authorize a majority of those of them who may qualify and be alive to do all the acts which my executors are hereinbefore authorized to do ; and if there be but one, then I authorize that one ; and I do hereby revoke all other wills by me at any time made.

Witness my hand and seal, at Charleston, this 25th August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-seven. Signed, sealed, published and decreed by the said Jonathan Lucas, } as and for his last will and testament, } JOH. LUCAS.
